The unseasonable heat in the carly part of the week was enervating to the produce trade and the disposition to hold cotton in the interior has also tied up transactions to some extent. The most motable price advance has occurred on eggs, which are today quoted 4c higher than a week ago. Supplies of turkeys have thinned out sufficiently to cause more stability as regards prices. The heavy receipts of poultry with a slackened demand for same caused a weakness in the situation and prices ruled fully like lower.

The receipts of Texas eggs were very much reduced yesterday, selling prices going up to 20c with a few sales reported at 21c.

Further advances are looked for during the week.

It would seem as if caution and inertia ruled the futures and caused a gradual easing off in price, which at the present outlook may bring them to almost any sort of valuation. As has been said before, it will require something material to change the trend in prices, and so far this has not appeared in the cotton world and the result has been that the monotonous decline has continued for another week. The indusces which control quotations at this time are strangely potent for, as a matter of fast, the places from whence they come are generally discredited. It is, to say the least, peculiar that the estimates that are thought the least of by the general public and by the average speculator and in estors in cotton can be so powerful in causing a fall in the value of the commodity. Nevertheless, this is the case, and any one, ne matter how little known or how poorly thought of as a statistician, can say that 11,000,000 bales are to be preduced this year and it will be generally believed and the effect of their estimate upon the market will be very easily seen and felt. In the middle of the week, however, some revised figures came from private sources which give an entirely different view of the situation and name 9.750,000 as the largest possible crop that is to be obtained, one would suppose that in a market so easily awayed as this one has been such buillahe estimates would have a small effect at least. But this was by no means the case, for nothing tangible took place in the way of advancing figures and we find that the public is generally willing to accept anything that is to hold prices down and will take nothing as authentic that is reach a statistic that is ready to be driven to cover at the first danger signal. It may be said here, however, that very few short contracts of a speculative nature have been put out during the last few weeks. The stagnation, in fact, is general, and there is to receive them.

One impersant feature of the week has been the failing off of receipts, and evidently it is true that certon has been rushed and inertia ruled the futures and caused a gradual easing off in price, which at the PECANS—New Texas, per 1b, 12@14c; nedium, 11@12c.

Houston, Texas, November 16.-Cotton ruled dull and steady today with a little easiness manifested in the New Orleans cotton market at the close. Liverpool was about as expected, 4-44 higher; spots unchanged, 5000 sold. Spots were stagnant, a little offering from the interior with no demand from abroad; quotations were unchanged except Houston and Galves on, where 1-16 decline was recorded. New York closed I up to I down, New Orleans 2 to 3 down. The movement was not heavy, port receipts being a little in excess of last year; estimates at Houston and New Orleans 30,000, against 42,000 last year. Killing frosts were seen last night over the cotton belt, with exception of extreme southers portion, and forecast is for rising temperatures with fair weather. One of the questions now agitating the minds of the operators is will the Trast top crop epen or will the bills rot? Our reports from many actions any holls are wet and soggy and can bet open, while reports from many actions any holls are wet and soggy and can bet open, while reports from many actions any holls are wet and soggy and can bet open, while heart few days will decide. Cotton seems to be at a level where all declines will be bitterly fought by these who believe in the stuple and who can not be canvinced that the 11,000,000 crop guesses are correct. The bulls have statistics in their favor, as there is nothing in the movement to warrant large estimates, and we believe that inside of thirty days recepts will indicate a crop not much larger than asy year, and even with Mr. Nell's estimated consumption of 10,300,000 hales American, a small surplus only can be had at the end of the season.

Liverpool is due to lose on Mosday what they gained today.
